

Princess Valera discovers a veil which separates the Seen from the Unseen. She enters it, guided by Prince Rhyselian. They are eventually wed. The day soon arrives for the banished Neuphaens, including him, to return to the manifested world through the expanded opening. Rhyselian and Valera undergo multiple preparations. They are protected by the Mystical Bloom and the Golden Hood. Great Powers direct the king and queen of the veiled world to enter the known world. Their people encounter paradise before they finally return the tangible kingdom.

The Dual Crown of Neuphae seek to guide the Returned to their proper homes. Prince Rhyselian and Princess Valera enter from the Known and the Unknown while aboard the Mystic Bloom. They discover the five springs first in a portrait in the ceiling of the palace of the hidden kingdom. Its thrones remain empty. King Alchean has the sword and inhabits a floral shroud and enters the Kingdom of Uenphae with his advisors. This delegation encounter a great scroll which provides the answers the Dual Crown seeks.

Four Kingdoms exist in a world unknown. Special Powers imbued certain inhabitants of each of the lands with special gifts. They are the chosen. Rumour has circulated that a prophesied enemy will soon appear. A young Vaeran woman is voted from among her people to lead them to prepare. The heavens steal her away with two other Vaerans. She and Dasarean both engage Augeen and Atharia in combat. Atharia reveals herself to be their enemy. She attacks the chosen of these two kingdoms. The Ytalan four are able to subdue her. The Vaerans slaughter Atharia where she lays.
